

15. No One Like You (by Andra Willis Muhoberac)

This song is from the Muppet's Rocky Mountain Christmas, but I found it in the Reader's Digest Songbook at the Guitton's house one night after a piano lesson. I've never heard the Muppet version, but it's probably very slow and quiet like mine. The words are just so sweet, it sounded like a sort of lullaby to me, so I only used piano and a little keyboards on it. For the bass part, I needed someone who could bow (to hold those long notes out), so Eric Kinlaw came to my rescue again. I love watching him play the bass. He's so gifted. If you're ever eating at his restaurant downtown - The Bee's Knees- and you happen to see him, tell him I said so.

I thought it would be nice to end this album with a lullaby, a quiet goodnight. I hope you enjoy it and it gives you sweet dreams. We'll be back to wake you up again, soon, with volume 2.

NO ONE LIKE YOU

I like your (E)eyes
I like your (A)nose
I like your (B)mouth, your ears, your hands, your (E)toes
I like your (E)face
it's really (A)you (F#)I like the things you say and (B)do There's not a (Fm)single (B)soul who (E)sees the (A)skies the (B)way you see 'em through your (E)eyes And (A)aren't you (B)glad, (G#)you should be (C#m)glad There's (E)no one, (B)no one, exactly like (E)you
